WORD OF THE DAY | Week 225

Word	Expression	Korean	Usage	Notes
No frills flight		저가 항공사/ 노 서비스 항공사 (서비스 없이 가격 거품을 모조리 빼고 오로지 운송만 하는 저가 항공사)	We took a no frills flight to Jeju last weekend / Europe has a lot of no frills flights to Sicily	Low cost flights with no meals provided. Usually very short flights
Accident prone		사고를 잘 당하는, 사고가 잦은	My brother is accident prone. He's always having accidents / These days our management team are very accident prone	Some one or something that always appears to be involved in accidents
Nitpicking		사소한 것을 문제시하는(함), 남의 흠을 잡아내는(냄)	Don't listen to him, he's only nitpicking / Stop nitpicking and just get on with it.	Looking for small or unimportant errors or faults, especially in order to criticise unnecessarily.
Tongue in cheek		(심각하지 않은) 가벼운 말투 농담, 놀림	She expressed that crazy idea with her tongue in her cheek | That email had a very tongue in cheek tone	stating something jokingly or not seriously. Not to be taken seriously
Drive home (one's message)		~을 알아듣게 만들다, 납득시키다	I am sure I drove home my point in my presentation | We have to drive home our message when we meet our clients	Make sure your audience understands you main message or point.
Ingenious		기발한, 독창적인	That's an ingenious idea! / My wife had an ingenious idea over the weekend	clever and original
Under fire		비난 (공격)을 받는	The government came under fire because of the economy last week | Our department's under fire because of the poor performance of our sales team.	Being criticised

Week 76 Link ›

- Blunder
- A cock-up
- Heir/heiress
- Wintery weather
- Aura
- Fluke
- A tearjerker

Week 165 Link ›

- Obsolete
- Unprecedented
- Your calling
- Thick skin
- Malicious
- Chock full
- Yes man (woman)